The history of Sunset Valley Metalcraft

First, we want to give all honor to our heavenly Father & Savior and to our group of dedicated employees without whom we would not exist.

The product idea all started in 1975 when my father had a farm repair welding shop and a neighbor who built equine facilities approached us about manufacturing horse stalls and barn doors for them. This turned out to be a very handsome supplemental income for the repair shop business.

This went on until 1988 when my father was ready to retire. I had just taken on the venture of taking over the home dairy farm, so father liquidated his business at public auction. However the horse stall idea never left me, so in 2000 with our oldest son out of school, we decided to fire up the welding shop again which at the time was 1,000 square feet.

In 2007 the idea of aluminum barn doors was born which greatly increased our exterior door sales. In 2008, we added portable horse stall rentals to our product line.

Over the years, we expanded and added space to the home farm shop until 2014 the decision was made to move off the farm to an industrial facility. Fast forward to 2024, we are utilizing 40,000 square feet with 28 employees and shipping/installing horse stalls and barn doors throughout the east coast and beyond.

These guys were the best. We put all our faith in them. Our stalls and barn doors not only turned out looking incredible, but they are bullet proof!

Exterior Barn Doors

Sunset Valley did an amazing job renovating our stable. Mike and Ben both came to see our barn prior to the renovations and helped us with the stall design and layout. We are so pleased with the results. Their crew is outstanding. They completed the entire project in one week. I highly recommend this company. My horses love their new stalls, and so do I!

~ Joyce Cowfer

Dutch Doors

We could not be happier with the team at Sunset Valley. From the first call until the final bit of work, they were a pleasure to work with. We have used them for several upgrades since our original project, and they will continue to be our go-to builders for our farm. If you are in search of quality, you are looking in the right place.
